

Annahstasia Enuke

Introduction

Annahstasia is a junior at Tufts University studying political science and fine arts. She is from Los Angeles California and her immediate career goal is to be an artist/musician as well as a well-rounded academic. Annahstasia plans go into a creative/ political field directing projects and providing alternative spaces in saturated and homogenous communities.

Being Nigerian-American, Annahstasia is interested in US/ Africa policy through the lens of race is personal interest -- "Feeling dissociated from Nigeria, having been raised primarily in the US far away from any immediate family I often find myself grasping at straws of my father-land. Also as a result of my upbringing and isolated family life, my conceptions of blackness are deviant from that our country at large and I have only been on the path of educating myself on the matter since my freshman year of college. So I'm looking forward to expanding on this as well."

Personal Information

Nigerian- American, her dad is from Arondizuogu, Nigeria and her mom is from Wisconsin, USA. They now reside in Los Angeles California.

Annahstasia has spent most of her time these past few years balancing academia and music. She spent 2016 as a year away where she focused on her goals and crafting a direction for herself, while working with a small label to get signed to a larger label. Now back at Tufts, she is ready to immerse herself in the things she found lacking while submerged in entertainment industry vapidty.

Annahstasia has been to Nigeria twice, once as a very young child and once around the age of 11, where she visited her family compound in the village as well as the year-round home in Lagos.